

Antifouling Coating Market Sales Area And Its Competitors, Revenue, Capacity By 2022

In 2014, Antifouling coatings were primarily used in shipping vessels, contributing to more than 80% of overall volume. These paints extend the dry-docking interval and provide direct fuel saving by protecting hulls from fouling organisms and corrosion. Production platforms & drilling rigs are projected to witness market growth, at an estimated CAGR of 8.0% by revenue, over the forecast period. Companies functioning in oil & gas sector are continuously investing in the market for FPSO vessels and thereby this is expected to serve market growth.

Regional Outlook

In 2014, Asia-Pacific was the dominant player accounting for nearly 85% of the overall volume in 2014. South Korea, Japan, China, Philippines and Taiwan are major hubs for shipbuilding activities. This is anticipated to lead to the dominance of Asia-Pacific in the shipbuilding segment, thus raising demand for antifouling paints. Furthermore, growing expenditure related to the production & exploration of crude oil & natural gas in India, Thailand and China, India are projected to further propel demand for these paints in production platforms and drilling rigs.

China, Taiwan, Philippines and South Korea, Taiwan are anticipated to witness substantial gains on account of presence of a large number of shipbuilding producers. In addition, the emergence of India and Australasia as production units of shipping vessels on account of regulatory provisions for encouraging new investments and funding at the domestic level is estimated to expand the market size. The presence of stringent rules and policies to monitor the use of biocides in agriculture and water treatment, personal care and marine applications by the European Commission and EPA is expected to impede antifouling coatings demand from 2015 to 2022.

In September 2013, the Government of India introduced Draft National Chemical Policy, to uplift the country's domestic throughput in the chemical industry to 6% by 2020 from 3% in 2014. Favourable government programs along with growing shipping sector in India is anticipated to present new opportunities in the next seven years. Europe's Antifouling Coating Market, on the
